

Voluntary Prayers and Fasting on the 27th of Rajab

Devotional performance should be done with cleanliness, purity of faith, with exclusive attention i.e. heart and should in the prayers and to understand what we are praying. It is our duty to worship Allah and also fast specially on the 27th day. Every devotional act will have spiritual benefits. This night is the night of Divine mercy and Allah will grant success and fulfillment of desires to the sincere devotees and also protect them from haram and Hellfire.

Allah's Messenger (Blessing of Allah and Peace be on him) said that 70,000 angels with trays of divine light on their heads enter the homes of the inmates who are in devout remembrance of Allah and by the grace of Allah they empty these trays over the heads of those who pray.

According to the Tradition, whoever performs devout actions during the 27th night and keeps fast during the 27th day of Rajab, he will be favoured with great spiritual reward. And if his intention is to gain Divine pleasure then he shall be honoured to partake meals with Prophet Hazrat Ibrahim (Alai-his-sa-laam), on the Day of Judgement.

This night should be celebrated by having sermons and sacred gatherings. Those holding and attending these gatherings will be worthy of spiritual rewards.

There are many types pointed out in many books Kitabul Awraad, Toohfah, Falah-ud-deen, Risala hashriyyah, Ahyaa-ul-uloom, Khoola-sa-tul Akhyaar, Sirool Asraar, Zaadool Maad, etc.
